Trauma Response & Treatment: What Faith Traditions Can Teach Us

PSI staff will partner this Spring with NYC faith leaders from different traditions for two Interfaith conversations. We will address how religious traditions influence communities of faith and individuals coping with trauma, especially in light of recent events in houses of worship, immigrant communities, and beyond. Together we will explore what we can learn as clinicians and helping professionals to inform our response and treatment.

On Wednesday April 3, 2019 we focused on Islam & Judaism with:

- Julia Kristeller, MEd, PSI Interfaith Minister
- Dr. Ahmad Jaber, Arab American Association of New York, President; Masjid Dawood, Chair
- Kim Schneiderman, LCSW, PSI Therapist
- Rabbi Esther Azar, MSW, Romemu Member
